

Join the Global Movement for Infectious Disease Advocacy

The Infectious Disease Alliance (IDA) is a global coalition of civil society organisations, researchers, and public health actors working to address the world's most pressing infectious disease threats. We champion inclusive, evidence-based approaches that ensure communities and local voices shape the policies and programmes that affect them.

WHY IDA MATTERS

Infectious diseases continue to drive preventable illness, social inequality, and pressure on health systems—especially in under-resourced settings. IDA strengthens the global response by connecting those on the frontlines, influencing health agendas, and promoting equitable access to resources, innovation, and decision-making spaces.

WHAT IDA DOES

IDA turns evidence into action. We identify priority challenges, generate policy-relevant insights, and build coalitions across sectors. Through strategic advocacy, high-level convenings, and member-led initiatives, we help organisations influence policy, secure funding, and scale impactful solutions.

Together, we are building a healthier, more prepared world.
